A CRAZY WILLOW OF MILWAUKEE CONVICTED OF A FORGERY.

Having a Little More than a Year for the Second Time in Prison of a Serious Nature to Occupy the Name of the Deceased John V. Quarles, Who Had Trusted His Confidence—The Motor Instrument Invented Two Years Ago Secured to Him Valuable Pieces of Property.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 5.—[Special.]—The people of the rural neighborhood across the river from Milwaukee have been interested for the past week in the trial of Frank Willow, one of the best known young men of the city, who has been in the employ of Alexander Mitchell, the millionaire president of the Milwaukee & Northwestern railroad company, for several years. The prisoner has been charged with forging the name of John V. Quarles, who died in this city about two years ago, to a deed conveying to Willow a piece of property on the corner of Kinnickinnic avenue and Lincoln street, which is now one of the most valuable pieces of property in the city. The prisoner was the legal adviser of the late Mr. Quarles, and has acted as executor of the estate of Quarles's widow, who died about two months ago. The prisoner had been the legal adviser of the family for many years, and had drawn many deeds and other documents relating to the estate of Mr. Quarles. It was in connection with the settlement of the estate of Mrs. Quarles that the forgery was discovered. The prisoner was arrested on the charge of forgery, and was held to the grand jury in the sum of $5,000. He was unable to secure bail, and was taken to the county jail, where he has been confined ever since. The case was called in the criminal court on Monday, and the trial has been in progress ever since. The prisoner was defended by Attorney Charles Quarles, a brother of the deceased, and the state was represented by District Attorney Winkler.

The first witness for the prosecution was Mrs. Quarles, who identified the deed as one executed by her husband. Mr. Quarles died on the 15th of March, 1889, and the deed was executed on the 1st of the following month. Mrs. Quarles testified that her husband was not in the habit of signing deeds without reading them, and that he was not in the habit of signing his name with a lead pencil. She also testified that the deed was not executed in her presence, and that she had never seen it until after the death of her husband. Mr. Quarles testified that the deed was not executed in his presence, and that he had never seen it until after the death of his father. Mr. Quarles also testified that the deed was not executed in his presence, and that he had never seen it until after the death of his father. Mr. Quarles also testified that the deed was not executed in his presence, and that he had never seen it until after the death of his father.
